Tips

Here are some tips that should help to make sure we can read the code:

- Please do not cut inside the black outline (the space to the left and right of the code is quite important).
- It is a good idea to laminate the code with plain, thin, untextured film (such as is used to cover text books), to avoid sweat or rain damage.
- It should be fine to print the barcode with any ink jet or laser printer, but please avoid using draft quality - barcodes printed like that may not be readable.
- Best results will be achieved by printing onto plain white paper or card.
- Please do not resize the barcode (either smaller or larger) - if you do, it will not work. Make sure your browser is not scaling the print.
- The print page contains six copies of your barcode - these are spare barcodes that can be left in convenient safe places. Excellent places to leave these emergency barcodes are:
  - If you cycle, to the frame of your bike.
  - If you drive, in your car
  - With your phone
  - In your wallet
  - Under the insole of your running shoe
